DRUGS, DERANGED DUDES & DIVORCE DOG THE 'DERE

Weston Magistrate's Court has had a busy month of it, as Belvedere's 1st and 2nd Team Captains and the club's prospective overseas player for next year, have all recently appeared in court.

Ian Royston Tarsker a.k.a. Badger was found guilty again at Weston Crown Court for possession with intent to supply a Class C drug, namely Marijuana. Tasker who pleaded guilty, in exchange for a deal to name his supplier, was fined £100 plus costs.

The supplier was named in court as grandfather of four Stephen 'Buckers' Buckley, 43 of The Queensway in Worle, damaging photographs produced in court showed Buckley in his back garden inspecting his horticultural efforts; Police estimated that the back garden Ganja had an anticipated street price of £20,000

Prosecution for Buckley who uses several aliases including

'Buckers' inspecting his back garden crop of Ganja earlier this month.

'Steevie Pratt' is imminent, the CPS are preparing further evidence including seized drug making items found under Mr Buckley's bed and in the bog cistern.

DT, WIFE AND MOTHER-IN-LAW IN LEATHER FETISH SHOCK

Minuscule midget, balding Dave Taylor has admitted to the Bulletin that his wife and In-laws are into leather in such a big way they have all gone out and bought top-of-the-range bikes.

The 1st teamer's 'King of No Spin' apparently loves the feel of leather next to his baby soft skin so much that after exhausting all the usual leather items such as his jock strap, his wife's leather nighties and her mum's gussetless leather thongs, they have gone the whole hog and all purchased high-powered, high-specked matching motorcycles just so they can all wear full body leathers.

Pictured above, showing off the trio of new machines, DT was particularly proud of his custom-made bike, he told the Bulletin "Toys-R-Us were fantastic, after giving them the spec I wanted, I was well chuffed when the bike arrived - a 650cc engine, with a 13 inch tall carbon fibre frame, 7¼ inch alloy wheels and a race fairing. The bike will do 165mph and has automatic electronic pop-out stabilisers when I reach 35mph".

Apparently the family all love to watch midget porn together, and are believed to have the biggest collection of DVD's in the UK.

Belvedere's prospective overseas player for next season was involved in an O. J. Simpsonsque farcical court case earlier this month, naturally blonde South African, Andréèè Belcher (42), currently languishing in the Blue Tits XI - Weston Cricket Club's 5th team, was charged with assault with a deadly weapon (his nose!) for the 8th time since arriving in the UK from his native Loréal province in 2004.

His surprise acquittal was received with loud gasps and boo's in No.3 Court, this despite the fact, that a blood stained batting glove found on the Coronation Estate was strangely ruled out as evidence due to a legal technicality, even though the initials A.B. were embroidered on the glove. Mr Bleacher told the Bulletin "the glove couldn't have been mine man, 'cos we haven't played any cricket for 2 weeks running".

The defence's star witness Adam Noshier (48½) was unable to give evidence at Belper's trial, due to the fact, that he himself was next door in No.2 Court standing trial for drink driving offences at the same time, crucially and surprisingly however, this didn't ruin Mr Burpher's case.

Andréèè's Solicitor Mr F. W. DeKlerc, issued a statement saying "Andréèè is obviously glad to have been cleared and will be celebrating his victory by visiting his hairdresser for another cut and dye again, and giving his bathroom mirror even more love bites".

Following some piss poor umpiring decisions, and a public beating by dad John - captured on camera, Martin Taylor appeared at Weston's new courthouse to divorce his father.

The Decree Absolute was issued to son Martin whilst Dad John was away on a level 7 umpiring course.

Loveable 'MT' has been seen publicly bickering with John on a more and more frequent basis, leaving a very nasty atmosphere on match days.

The final straw came last month, when Dad John gave 'MT' out LBW when the ball struck him in the stomach, however, Hawkeye clearly showed him to be plumb!

Asked to comment on the situation MT said "Hawkeye is a load of bollocks".

LORD WATTS SERIOUSLY INJURED IN BIZARRE ACCIDENT

emergency surgery was required to remove the ball after it was embedded in his shoulder.

The accident was the culmination of an outrageously bizarre sequence of cricketing events, starting with Robert 'Soapy' Statham bowling flat out off of 2½ paces. The opposition's star over-sea's player, right-hander Sourav 'Window' Sil, having reached his ton decided to twat Soapy's best delivery of the day employing a cunning but sweet left-handed reverse sweep for a colossal 6, the ball ricocheted pinball style off of several branches some 95ft up in the trees only to drop straight on a deaf and blind 'Wattsy', the ball punctured the skin and lodged in his shoulder blade, as the rest of the team and opposition pissed themselves laughing.

A precautionary X-ray revealed that the ball had dislocated 'Wattsy's' shoulder and he was immediately admitted for emergency surgery.

The player, now recovering at home, will fortunately not be available for the rest of the season, the club wish him well in recovery and thank him for the best laugh of the season so far!

BINGE EATING RON CAUSES CLUB CONCERN

Big Andy '100%' Loud has been piling on the pounds after his hernia operation last month, so much so, that club officials and his wife Julie are concerned for his health. 'Loudy' has been eating inordinate amounts of food and drinking copious amounts of lager since his enforced layoff a month ago, spotted here stuffing his face on Weston beach 2 weeks ago, onlookers were fearful that the porn star look-alike was going to have a coronary.

Questioned about the huge weight gain, big Ron told the Bulletin "I haven't put on any weight, I just have a good appetite, I'm playing cricket again and feel great".

Wife Julie told the Bulletin "he's comfort eating due to manic depression, I don't think he has come to terms with the fact that his hernia is now a better cricketer than he is".

CHUCKLE BROTHERS ON MEDICATION

Mike Broadhead and his best mate Andy Taylor have agreed to be guinea pigs and test a new paranoid schizophrenia drug.

The pair often referred to as Kevin and Perry or the Chuckle Brothers are known to be on medication anyway, but have agreed to trial the new mind straightening drug for twelve months.

An excitable and barely understandable Mike Broadbent spoke with the Bulletin saying "I get this constantly hideous buzzing between my ears 24 hours a day, I can't even flippin' sleep, my doctor says it's contagious and now I've infected Andy with it, but he reckons he can't hear my buzzing, only his own, so I'm not sure what's going on. The new medication hasn't been licensed yet, but we've both agreed to try it for 12 months."

Andy Taylor was not available for interview when the Bulletin turned up at a recent 3rd XI match at 3.15pm, as he had already buggered off to attend a 3 week long poker match.

Doctor's from Weston's Long Fox Unit prescribing the drug have also been unavailable for comment.

FAT FIVE OFF DIET

The Fat Five have failed to stay on their diets, and have now entered the world of competitive eating. Led by self acclaimed leader Rob 'Soapy' Statham, the five have toured throughout the UK and Europe and have won 7 major competitions.

The 'Dirty Ox' leads the money list (£134.27p) winning 6 of them - his best performance was consuming 96 Big Macs in 1 hour, beating his nearest rival - 'Chunky' by 32¼ burgers. The only other success was 'Guptas' demolition of 84.3 rashers of bacon in 12 minutes.

'Soapys' best effort (shown below) was 45 hot dogs followed by a stomach pump.

Soapy struggles with hot dog number 43, Dirty Ox thinks it's Christmas and has Gupta lost some weight...Nah?
